Jack has worked exclusively in the healthcare and university markets for over twenty years. He has in-depth knowledge of clinical hospital departments, including diagnostic and medical treatment equipment, and coordinates complex hospital expansion projects.

Jack has a particular depth of experience in expanding and renovating hospital patient units, serving as the project architect for patient unit renovations and conversion to private rooms at four NorthShore University HealthSystem hospitals (Skokie, Highland Park, Evanston, and Glenbrook). He has also been instrumental in the progress of Eckenhoff Saunders' Skokie Hospital masterplan implementation. Jack is a versatile architect working equally well with end-users, contractors, and governing bodies.
